or that the exchange rate (D) or (E) of the foreign currency will fall, the relationship between the exchange rate and the dollar value of the foreign currency will change. Thus, the exchange rate will tend to fall.

In elasticity analysis, the exchange rate elasticity is calculated as the percentage change in the exchange rate divided by the percentage change in the dollar value of the foreign currency.

The exchange rate elasticity is a measure of the responsiveness of the exchange rate to changes in the dollar value of the foreign currency. A high exchange rate elasticity indicates that the exchange rate is very responsive to changes in the dollar value of the foreign currency, while a low exchange rate elasticity indicates that the exchange rate is not very responsive to changes in the dollar value of the foreign currency.
